INO. 8199,-APRIL 16, 1889. CAPTAIN des Vœux, Aide-de-Camp, and Mr. Slingsby Bethell, Private Secretary to the Governor, having resigned their posts, left to-day by the Clyds for the North. Capt, the Hon. J. S. St. Aubyn, eldest son of the Earl of St. Levan, succeeds Capt des Voux, and Mr F. H. May, Assistant Colonial Secretary, will act as Private Secretary until a new appointment is made.

A winow named Chan Soung was brought before Mr Wodehouse in the Police Court to-day, charged with abducting a boy of three years. The complainant, the wife of a school-master in the Tung Kun district, said she had a quarrel with her husband a few days ago, in consequence of which she wanted to leave him. She confided her wish to the defendant, who advised her to come to Hongkong. Defendant promising to get her a situation here as a wetnurse, she sgreed to forsake her unkind pedagogue and seek happiness in this colony. Taking her infant son with her, she left in company with the defendant. Shortly after her arrival here, the defendant took the child away and left him somewhere, explaining when she returned that she had sold him. The complainant went out to look for her son and met in the street her husband, who, accompanied by a Po Leung Kuk detective, was searching for his missing wife and child. Through the assistance of the detective the child was found shortly afterwards. The defendant denied having any intention to sell the child, and said she wanted to find somebody to look after him in order that his mother might be able to take employment. The case was remanded, defendant being allowed bail in $100. THE closing meeting of the first session of the Hongkong Literary and Debating Society was held last night, Pastor Hartmann presiding. Dr Chalmers read an interesting paper on the subject of Loarning Chinese. He said Chinese teachers were not generally a success; they had no idea of the art of toaching. The learner, however, must obtain the assistance of the native in order to acquire the tones and pronunciation of the language. He must also obtain the best books on the subject and compare the pronunciation of the teacher with that given in the books. As far as Cantonese was concerned, the teacher's pronunciation must be often corrected by that indicated in the book, as the teacher, according to the district he come Nord enterher Lloyd's S. S. Co.'s from, might drop his he or introduce other variations. Dr Chalmers mentioned Mr Ball's books in terms of praise, while submitting them to a little friendly criticism. He spoke of the difficulties which the learner had to encounter in mastering the tones, particles and dissifiers, but said that once these initial troubles were overcome, pretty rapid progress might be made, as the Chinese language presented no grammatical or inflexional difficulties. Several questions wore put to the lecturer at the end by students or intending students of the and may be expected here on or about language, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to him. Several members indicated their willingness to become members of a class for the study of Chinese, and Chalmers, Paster Hartmann, Mr May and Inspector Stanton promised to give what assistance they could to any native teacher who might be engaged. Dr Cantlie said it was intended to open the next session with a conversatione, at which he hoped there would be a large attendance of members and friends, men

Mr. Chaplin, M.P., speaking recently at Leicester, observed that, with regard to bi-metallism, he was happy to say that be did not balieve it was possible by any human agency to twist it into a party matter. He pointed out as a most remarkable circumstance that since the demonstration of silver in 1873, there had been an unusual and a prolonged depression in trade and agriculture all over the world. He was one of those who firmly believed that the abandonment of the system of bimetallism was undoubtedly one and quite possibly the main cause of the depression which had prevailed for a period of fourteen years, and for which no one had been able to ascribe any other sufficient reason. At all events, it was a most curious coincidence that there set in about 1874 a period of depression in industry and in all kinds of business which bad lasted from that time simost up to the present moment.

the Catholic Church of St. Peter and St. Paul at Clonmel, on the 3rd inst. The Catholic soldiers of the garrison attend Mass there every Sunday morning, and whilst the officiating priest, Father Byrne. was reading the Bishop's Lenten pastoral, in which he strongly condemned the action of the Government towards Ireland, and adjured the people to pray for, their country in this time of trouble. Lieutenant Geobegan, who was in charge of the broops, rose in his seat, and ordered his men to leave the building. As they did not immediately obey, he repeated the order twice. Father Byrne, addressing the men from the altar, commanded them to remain in their seats, and all the soldiers, except two serieants, who followed Lieutenant Geohegan out of the church, obeyed the priest and stayed where they were until Mass was over. On leaving the chapel, Lieutenant Geohogan was hooted and hustled by a crowd of people, and when the soldiers marched for their barracks they were accompanied by a crowd, who cheered them heartily for the course they had adopted. Before the officer left the chapel the priest publicly rebuked him, and told him that he should report him to his superior

AT Kinking some of the sons of rich Chinese merchants, 'fast' young men, are in the habit of engaging professors of the art of boxing and the savate, to give them lessons in the science of self-defence, so that when they get into rows during their nocturnal revels they may get the better of their autagonists. This rowdyism is not approved of by their fathers and elder brothers, but they do not seem to have been able to put a stop to the custom, which is a disgrace to the native society of Kinking. One of these professors, a King-peh man called Hu, had been for a long time getting on worse and worse terms with a rival teacher A COMPLICATED TEA TRANSACnamed Lan, a gentleman from Kwang-tsi, in martial Hupeh; and at last their mutual ill-feeling culminated in a challenge to meet each other on 27th March in the court of the Fire-god's Temple, just outside the south gate of Kiukiang, and see which should prove the 'better under his tuition, and when the time came there was a goodly attendance to see the sport. Mr Hu first came on the ground with a cotton-band round his forehead, a tight belt round his waist and tightly fitting short garments and cried, 'Where is Lan the coward should come on in woman's clothes if he comes at all.' Just as the people were beginning to jeer at the absent Lan for his pusillanimity in not appearing to the challenge, that here bounded into the arens, boiling with rage and without ottering a word went straight for Mr Hu. For some minutes there was a confused scene of brawny, legs and arms whirling through the air, and then Ru, a very cornulent man, began to pant and grean and show symptoms of having had enough. This was Lan's opportunity, of which ha availed himself by putting in a vigorous right-hander, which knocked out one of Hu's eyes: Hu was carried off to hospital amidst rapturous appleuse from Lan and his supporters, and the ribald men dispersed - Native paper.

HITRERTO there have been fixed regulations by which the houses and lands of Chinese in the interior may be sold to foreigners for the establishment of Christian chapels : but in spite of this, instances of clandestine or unauthorised transfers have not been rare, owing to the people's ignorance. The two District Magistrates of Kiang-tu and Kant'suam, the two districts forming the prefectural City of Yangchow, in Kiangau Province, have now issued a Proclamation on the subject, in which they quote the Treaty. This Proclamation reminds the people that when foreigners desire to buy land in the interior in order to found chapels, the owner of the land must first report to the local authorities, who will, provided that the fingshui of the neighbouring inhabitants be not injuriously affected by the proposed chapel, authorise the sale of the land for its erection if all be in order, for which sale there must be a dead drawn up in proper form. According to this proper form, the land is transferred for the purposes of a Roman Catholic chapel for the community, and not to any person (wis yeh) to have as his private property.' BOARD OF SURVEYORS FOR THE YELLOW RIVER. March 28th. -- Amongst the ancients, says Wu Ta-ch'eng, the art of map-making never reached the state of perfection which it has attained in modern times. The charts which have been made of the seabard and of the Yangtze have proved the utmost service in carrying on the work of river and coast defence, and captains of ateamers rely upon their charts as guides in points is an important element is arranging plans for its conservation. The charts hitherto made of the River have been mostly the work of Yamen underlings, and have merely given a rough outline without marking the degrees of latitude and longitude or noting the distances. Memorialist has been at great pains to obtain the services of an expert in chart making, but has completely failed to find one. There is no person amongst the officials or literati of Henan who possesses any exact knowledge of mathematics or surveying, and until a taste for these studies is introduced, no improvement can be expected in this respect. Memorialist therefore proposes to establish in K'ai-long Fu a Board of of the Foochow Arsenal, againg them to unable to satisfy themselves upon it, -they at which the force of the current is greattributaries with the main stream, the trend of the hills on both sides and the distance

We must, however, be content with the more statement of a few cases, by way of illustration, two of which occurred within the knowledge of the writer, while the third is taken from the published reports of a large hospital in Tientsin. The whole force of instances of this sort depends upon the undoubted fact, that they are by no means isolated and altogether exceptional cases, but are such as could be matched by the observation of very many of our readers. Several years ago, while living in a house with a Chinese family, the writer heard one afternoon the most dismal acreams under the window, where was placed a large beehive, made of adobe bricks, and open at the bottom. A little boy fourteen menths of ago was playing in the yard, and seeing this or ening into what looked like a convenient play-house, had injudiciously crawled in The child's head was shaved perfectly bare, and was very red. The bess either resent. ing the unusual intrusion, or mistaking the baid pate for a huge peopy, promptly litupon the head, and began to sting. fore he could be removed, the child had received more than thirty stings. The child cried but a few moments, and then being laid on the k'ang went to sleep. No medicine of any sort being at hand, nothing was applied to the skin. During the night the child was perfectly quiet, and the next day no trace of the swelling remained. In the year 1878, a carter in the employ of a prices range from 30 to 70 cash per foot foreign family in Peking, was taken with the prevalent typhus fever, of which so many died. On the thirteenth day when the disease reached a crisis, the patient, who had been very ill indeed, became exceedingly violent, exhibiting the strength of several men. Three persons were deputed to watch him, all of whom were exhausted with their labours. During the night of this day, the patient was tied to the bed to prevent his escape. While the watchers were all asleep, he contrived to loosen the cords with which he was bound. and escaped from the house perfectly naked. He was missed at about 3 a.m. and the whole premises were searched that His Excellency is perfectly convinced work of surveying and chart-making, but falls to provide fuel for the brick bed.
